PROWLER BREAKS INTO LOCAL MEAT MARKET SATURDAY

An unknown man broke into the Hellwig and LaGrave meat market, Niles, last Thursday night, and was thwarted in an attempt to rob the place by A. Roderick, nightwatchman. The invader obtained entrance through a large back window, which was completely demolished.

According to Roderick, he was making his rounds when he discovered that someone was trying to enter the Hellwig and LaGrave establishment and upon investigation discovered the man, who immediately jumped from another window and made his escape, without leaving any clue to his identity. An effort was made to apprehend the unknown prowler, but met with no success.

When interviewed, S. Marshall, manager of the market, stated that the amount of damage done was estimated at approximately $50.

RUMMAGE SALE HERE PROVES TO BE GREAT EVENT FOR CHARITY

Township People Give Toyon Group Much Assistance

MRS. J. R. WHIPPLE, chairman of Alameda County Children's hospital rummage sale, which was held last Friday and Saturday, has reported that the project met with most successful results. Over $70 was taken in from the sale of all kinds of clothing, furniture, dishes, hardware, and bric-a-brac. Many people throughout Washington township contributed to this success by donating articles, and sponsors of the sale wish to extend their greatest appreciation for all cooperation and assistance given them.

Many members of the Children's hospital, Toyon Branch, assisted nobly in furthering the sale. Among those who put forth great effort for the benefit of the dependent children were Mrs. William Kirk, Mrs. Fred Nelson Mrs. William V. Eberly, Mrs. Rosalie Donovan, Mrs. William Robie, Mrs. August May, Miss Mildred Nauert, Mrs. William H. Ford, Mrs. J. C. Shinn, Mrs. George Hudson, Mrs. Herbert Harold, and Mrs. Lawrence Bunting.

Each of the above mentioned did much to benefit this great cause, child aid, which is the reason why Toyon Branch, and mother organization, Alameda County Children's hospital, is now in existance. Charity was the aim of the sale and all those who aided can know that they did a good deal to help children who are sadly in need of proper food, clothing, education and physical and mental care necessary to bringing the child into a state of young manhood or womanhood—a good, upright, clean minded citizen, fit to take a place in the world of today, that demands so much in every walk of life.

KPO, one of the largest coast radio broadcasting stations, took notice of the sale, through extensive publicity given in township newspapers, and wrote to Mrs. J. R. Whipple concerning it. The communication was received from Stewart E. Strong, who manages the Date Book, a KPO feature unit, and in this he mentioned the high quality of the sale publicity.

This was the first sale of this kind ever sponsored by the Toyon group, and because of that fact, they did not wish to made arrangements and plans too extensive. However, due to the many articles donated the sale was held again Wednesday, after being opened Friday and Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. A. Pratali, manages of the Wesley building, were very kind and assisted by donating the vacant store where the sale took place.

When interviewed by the Register reporter Mrs. Whipple, chairman, stated that she wished to thank all those who helped the Toyon group n this charitable venture, on behalf of her organization, which is devoted to aiding the needy, and putting forth a helping hand where there as a sad lack of such in times of stress.

As there has been some misunderstanding in the past as to how this fund is used the following statement has been obtained by

Estelle Evans Is Honored By Centerville Daughters

BETSY ROSS Parlor, Native Daughters of the Golden West, entertained Grand President Estelle Evans Friday, October 17, at a meeting held at Anderson Hall, Centerville. Matilda Enos, president of the parlor, opened the meeting and presided throughout the evening.

Before the session a banquet was served for the assembled members and guests at the El Lido restaurant, and Grand President Estelle Evans was given the seat of honor. The ladies all wore formal evening dress and the banquet hall presented a beautiful and festive appearance, as it was decorated with many lovely flowers.

Quite a large group of visiting sisters were present at this affair, coming largely from Aloha, Angelita, Piedmont, San Jose, Vendome, Hayward, and Pleasanton parlors.

Worthy Grand President Estelle Evans, complimented Betsy Ross Parlor for its steady progressiveness, and during her very interesting talk said that she thought the plans for a dance to be given soon by Betsy Ross Parlor were most excellent. New High School Gymnasium Will Be Opened October 30th Formal opening of the new gymnasium at Washington Union High school, Centerville, has been postponed from October 29 to October 30. A program will start at 8 o'clock, and several important speakers will be present.

This gymnasium is one of the most important structures ever erected in Washington township, and completed represents a cost of $80,000. An extension of the modern steam heating plant in the high school proper to the gymnasium has been made, thus giving the various rooms the right temperature for sports or assembly meetings.

The structure has ample seating space for all kinds of social and sport events. There is one large main room, for practice and play of teams, and smaller rooms lead off from this. There are dressing rooms for boys and girls, shower stalls, lockers, closets, and latest type of equipment thoughout.

For a long time the high school has been in need of a building like this. During winter months students very often had to give up their physical education and sports on account of inclement weather. The gymnasium will also be used for social affairs as well as sports. During the season games of different sorts will take place.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

By NORMAN H. PARKS, Publisher Register

EPAULETTED TRAFFIC COPS

JUST WHY traffic patrolmen should whiz along the highway in gold braid and tinsel, is beyond the penetration of the ordinary mind. The most brazen violator of road regulations may adjust himself to the appearance of a careful and considerate driver whenever a speed cop is near. The gentleman on a shining white motorcycle with cut-out open, and all brightened up with straps and military trappings, announces his approach from afar. Even the drunken driver has sense enough left to get himself in hand before our state officer sails majestically by.

A more absurd policy is hard to conceive.

Traffic officers should drive in ordinary cars, of different makes. They should wear plain clothes. Then they might catch more violators, and put the fear of the law into the hearts of reckless drivers, who, not knowing who might be a traffic officer, would probably be careful. Under present conditions the road menace does quite as he pleases until he hears or sees the epauletted official on the motorbike approaching and then he becomes a very decorous driver.

But why hope for a change along the lines suggested. It would mean making the job no better than being a plain clothes man. No dress parade, no thinly veiled admiration from the sweet young thing who professes adoration for the traffic cop in his perfect-fitting uniform with its bright, shinning badge, and awe-inspiring head-gear. To change to the commonplace in the interests of efficiency would, naturally, break down the morale of the organization, and take out of it the romance and glamour now attached to the department.

Meanwhile fatal traffic accidents mount to a startling point. Our traffic department seems helpless to prevent the appalling casualties of the highway. A half hour after an accident occurs, a representative in high haste and with much gusto brings his motorcycle to a halt to count the dead. And that's about all.

MILLIONS FOR DISPLAY AND NOT A DOLLAR FOR REGULATION!

IT WOULD BE A GLORIOUS FEELIN'

We wish we had a mint of money.

It seems to us that such a situation would be a very happy one. We cannot help but feel that it would be glorious to work or not as one might choose. To be able to pack our bag on the slightest pretext and journey to new scenes would be the apex of luxury, according to the lights of this writer just at this particular moment. We sit down on Sunday and read about some interesting spot, maybe a hundred miles, maybe thousands of miles away. We would like to go there. With plenty of money our wish would soon be gratified. Perhaps we would like to return to boyhood scenes. With a bulging bank balance, and nothing to do, off we would go. Wouldn't it be great? It certainly would! But it just "aint" in the cards.

In lieu of cash, we use our imagination, and many an interesting trip we take on fancy's wings. And there is,after all, some advantage to this sort of traveling. After it is all over, in a few minutes or seconds, here we are right back in Niles in an easy chair, our good wife by our side, and old faithful Tom purring before the fire.

WAR, WHISKEY AND HEARST!

NOW THAT THE "greatest living American" has been feted, dined and ginger-aled by the most marvelous hand-made hulla-baloo ever pulled off in this country, the subscribers of the Hearst papers may read about something else again.

On a platform of whiskey and war, the great publisher should make a killing in 1932. By that time the dogs of war will be pulling at their leashes, with the cords of peace snapping one by one. And think how thirsty the nation will be!

Decoto Chamber of Commerce Holds Meet

A meeting of the Decoto Chamber of Commerce was held last week, and the question of improving Decoto telephone service was again brought up. While paying the same telephone rates as adjoining communities Decoto receives only fifty per cent of the service, as the telephone switchboard only operates during the day time.

This feature of the community service has been thought a drawback by Decoto people for some time and general opinion tends toward the belief that the telephone company should either give adequate service or reduce rates proportionately.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Neves, of Decoto, are the parents of a seven pound baby daughter born Monday morning. Mrs. Neves is at home where she and the baby are doing very nicely.

The OBJECT of the Electric Railway Tax Equalization Amendment (Number Four on the ballot) is to reclassify for taxation purposes the electric railways of California as distinct from the steam railroads and to place the taxes of the electric railways on an equality with taxes paid on common property and by the motor bus and stage companies. It is:

BASED on the California Tax Commission's findings that the electric railways "bear a disproportionately large tax burden."

APPROVED unanimously by the Senate Committee on Revenue and Taxation and the Assembly Committee on Constitutional Amendments.

SHALL WATER SYSTEM OF THIS DISTRICT GO TO PRIVATE CAPITAL

DECISION WILL EFFECT PLANS FOR ALAMEDA COUNTY GROWTH

by CHRIS RUNCKEL

(The writer of this article is not speaking as secretary of the board of directors. They are his views and are presented for the consideration of the people of the district who are vitally interested).

A very important decision, fundamentally important, must soon be made. It will be one the effects of which will run long into the future. It will shape in an important way development of this part of Alameda county. Affairs of the district have reached a turning point. Shall the district assume responsibility in development and construction of a distribution system for the entire district or shall that responsibility be turned over to private capital?

At the last meeting of the board held on October 4, an offer of $75,000 was made for distribution system at Newark and Alvarado and the territory north of the latter town as far as San Lorenzo creek in Eden township. This included thirty-eight acres of land at Alvarado, pumping plant, numerous wells, and most important of all water rights sufficient to serve the sections mentioned now and in the future. This offer was made by A. Welch, formerly with the Foshay Water Company, which bought out the Citizens Water Company at Niles. Mr. Welch is said to represent other capitalists at present. It is understood that the proposition is part of a plan to bring all distribution systems of the district into one system owned by private capital and regulated by the State Railroad Commission. This proposition was rejected on motion made by Director W. D. Patterson, who believes it is bad policy and that it may interfere with best interests of the district in the future. Rejection, however, is only temporary, as some of the directors are in favor of selling but are holding out for at least $100,000. Directors favoring the sale think it best to sell the distribution system and apply the money received to reduction of bonded indebtedness.

A long contest extending over sixteen years, harassing and expensive details attending adjustments at Alvarado to fit new conditions and responsibilities that must be faced and assumed make them shrink from the extensive and continuous job ahead of acquiring and conducting a distribution system for the entire district. They can hardly be blamed, as they have served the district conscientionsly for a long time.

Public Utility that Pays

I can not see the situation as some directors see it. As I see the situation distribution of water to people of the towns is just as much a problem for the district as insurance of a sufficient water supply for irrigation. I don't see why it cannot be just as successfully handled in this district as it is now being done all over the world, by both small as well as large communities. It is hard to find a section or city where physical features and supply of water are more favorable. It is the kind of public utility that pays under public ownership everywher-. There are plenty of facts to prove this, as we showed people of the East Bay Municipal Utility District when a campaign was on to form that district. I hope some of those who will be our sucessors will read what I am about to write and think it over. If you think I am right take it up in your various organizations and let the board know how you feel about it. Members want to do the right thing and you may help to show the way. I am secretary of the board and I may be suspected of just trying to hold my job or to increase my salary.

People Control

First of all: after sixteen years of patient efforts we have secured control of the natural water supply of this district so far as we can do so at present. People of the district, as a district, have a right to certain water from Calaveras dam each year. By purchase of water rights at Alvarado they have stopped all diversion of water from the district except water now going to Hayward and Mr. Eden section. This is less than a million gallons a day. From now on, then, whatever is done with local water supply must be done by representatives of the people of this district.

Litigation Over

In the next place the long period in which we put up a defensive fight or prepared to put up one in order to save or acquire rights for the people of the district is passed. There is no longer any need of compiling more expensive engineering data to be used in law suits or other controversies. As auditor of the district I have tried hard for the past four years to keep tax rate down. It has been a hard and very disagreeable task, as my motives have been misinterpreted. The only thing we need now is plenty of flood water coming down Alameda creek, either in natural floods or in released water from Calaveras dam. For the first time in the history of the district whatever water comes from now on and goes into the gravel beds of the district, will be kept in those gravel beds for use only of people of the district. This will not be due to any engineering data we have compiled but to the fight we dared to put up against the Spring Valley Water Company when the district was first formed and to the various moves that were made to help bring in a Sierra Nevada mountain supply for the East Bay cities and so be able to acquire the water rights at Alvarado. In the future we may develop means of putting more water into the gravel beds.

Develop District

Our immediate job is to solve the water distribution problem. First of all we must decide whether this problem is to be assumed by the district or left to private capital. I have always thought that when the time was ripe for it the district should assume responsibility and develop a distribution system for the entire district. It should go hand in hand with problems of fire protection and sanitation of the district for which the people are already taxing themselves. There are other services the district can render in the future after the water problem is better under way. Development of the right kind of a domestic water supply publicly owned, for all towns will surely aid in development of the district. This will encourage such enterprises to come to the district as o proposed home for the Eastern Star order, or addition to religious institutions at Mission San Jose, as well as new residential areas and industries.

New Overhead

Our people already have an organization. Alameda County Water District is planned to fit into growing needs of the people of this section and is exactly the kind of an organization needed to deal with big water systems of San Francisco or the East Bay. The district must be maintained to protect our share of the annual release from Calvarearas dam. It must also be maintained to carry out obligations of the bond issue recently sold. It must protect the district from any new invasion on its water supply. Local distribution of domestic supply can be carried on without any extra overhead.

System Can Pay

Water distribution can be made to pay its own way and also part of the interest on the water rights bond issue. If private capital buys the business its only concern is profit and that profit will be allowed by the railroad commission and it will be taken outside of the district. This district has operated the Alvarado and Newark systems for only three months. We know cost of pumping water at Alvarado is out of proportion to amount of water consumed. That can be remedied. We also know that the price charged for water at Newark by City of San Francisco is extremely high. The district will find a way to remedy that also. Everything cannot be remedied at once but will be remedied much faster in a district like ours where people have control. If overhead expense of the district is too great it can be cut by the board of directors. Most expenses immediately attending transfer of the property at Alvarado have been met.

Small Property Owner

Another phase of this situation must not be overlooked for it cannot be avoided. The small property owner in the district, who has built his home in a location where he must depend on the local distribution system, has just as much claim on the district as the larger farmer. He pays taxes for support of the district and property will be obligated to pay taxes for the next twenty-five years. Some small property owners have been paying to keep the district going for the past sixteen years. Is it fair for the farming interests to sell him out to private interests? If this is done can he be expected to rally to any cause of the farming interests in the future? Unless every interest in the district is equally guarded factions are bound to arise, and the unity and strength of the district will be destroyed.

Seeds of Trouble

Another danger, and a real one. This is the establishment of a large private water distribution system in our midst. As the district grows we will have a growing private corporation with growing demands each year and the inevitable conflict There is another feature about this present proposition. They are asking for water to supply the growing needs of Eden township. People of that section other than those who were forced on us by the East Bay Municipal District have no claim on our water supply. They will have, however, if we agree to the proposition now under consideration. Only people in the present water district have been bonded to acquire rights at Alvarado or taxed to win what has been won. Surely they are the first to be considered. If people of Eden township are not willing to cooperate with the people of our district in solving an expense forced upon us, they cannot expect us to go to their assistance.

Sell the Next Generation

We exercrate the policy of those selfish and short sighted predecessors of ours who sold out the riparian rights of this district a generation ago. We have spent a lot of money to win for our people percolating water rights of the district. We have just bonded the district to buy back water rights which were lost through indifference of the last generation. Are we now, who have made a good fight to restore the water rights to this district going to sell out the next generation in the matter of a water distribution supply?

Finally, if we abandon the distribution of water we lose any chance we may have of enjoying the benefits of the great Hetch Hetchy system. Under the Ranker act San Francisco cannot sell water from the Hetch Hetchy to a private corporation. It can sell to our district because it is a public corporation. This one thing alone will put us out of the race with any other section on either side of the bay. They will have pure soft Sierra Nevada mountain water for their homes. We won't. This one disadvantage will be greater than any benefit our district may gain by the saving of interest on $100,000.

As I see the future of this district is bound to grow much faster as the adjoining towns and cities grow bigger. Growth is going to bring more people, who will build homes. Present towns will gradually merge into one large suburban section. An assured and adequate supply of the best water obtainable for homes of the district will be a great asset. I hope it may be said of this generation that it was thoroughly solicitious of the next and passed on to them an heritage unimpaired.

Two persons enter into a conspiracy against a third one. One of the conspirators is not true to the compact. Secretly he informs the third party or takes other action that defeats the conspiracy and throws the burden on his trusting partner. Such is the origin of the term, double cross. It has had various modifications and applications until it has come to mean almost any underhanded gaining of confidence and subsequent betrayal. Beginning as a slang term, it was too expressive to remain so, and is now a recognized figure of speech. A singularly wicked form of the double cross is the basis for this story. A man proves recreant to the most sincere form of friendship, recreant to the partner who held him in the closest regard, aided him over rough places, paid his debts and persistently excused or overlooked his faults. The most dastardly action was when the false friend came between the true one and the woman he loved.

Written by a successful playwright, the story is essentially dramatic, crisp in dialogue and realistic in action. The metropolitan setting is used with fine effect to produce atmosphere and characterization. The absorbing elements of the plot are rendered more fascinating by a vein of subtlety and mystery leading to an unexpected climax near the end. The story might appropriately be termed the triple cross, for the double crosser himself becomes the victim of one whom he trustingly took into his enterprise.

CHAPTER I.—Jim Stanley, wealthy young New York business man, unable to concentrate in his dictation to his desk audiphone, has the machine taken to his home, intending to finish his work there. Rollin Waterman, his business partner and closest friend, comes in. Both men are avowedly in love with Doris Colby. Stanley proposes they toss a coin to determine which of them shall, that evening, first ask her to marry him. Waterman wins.

CHAPTER II.—Nina Morgan Waterman's secretary, also his mistress, has overheard his conversation with Stanley and resents Waterman's plans to desert her. Waterman tells her he is practically penniless and must make a rich marriage. He urges Nina to go to Doris and tell her she (Nina) has been wronged—but by Stanley. The girl consents, on Waterman's promise to take care of her.

CHAPTER III.—Doris admits to her father her interest in both Stanley and Waterman, and is sure they are both in love with her, but she is unable to make up her mind which to marry.

CHAPTER IV.—Nina goes to Doris with her story, securing a promise that Doris will not reveal the source of her information. She convinces Doris of Stanley's duplicity, and leaves her broken hearted, and realizing that it is Stanley she really has loved.

CHAPTER V.—Waterman that evening asks Doris to marry him, and she, believing Stanley unworthy, accepts him. According to the arrangement, Stanley appears, to learn his rival has won. He accepts the situation, and as a wedding present gives his share of the business to Waterman. Next day he arranges with his secretary, Frank Wilson, to take charge of his other business interests. He is going to India.

CHAPTER VI.—Doris, unable to put Stanley completely out of her mind, tells Waterman part of Nina's story. He promises to "try" to find the girl, so that full corroboration can be made. Waterman is deeply in debt to a gambler, Bromfield, and the latter presses for payment. Waterman quiets him by the news of his engagement to the wealthy Doris Colby.

CHAPTER VII.—Waterman makes a financial arrangement with Nina which will insure her silence.

CHAPTER VIII.—Frank Wilson, who has long been aware of Waterman's crooked business methods and his debts, sees Nina at the wedding, and vague suspicions are aroused in him. He leaves Waterman's employ. The latter begins to importune Doris for money, ostensibly for the "business" but actually for gambling purposes.

somewhat disappointed by his daughter's choice, but true to his announcement to Doris, he had not voiced his disappointment. He had made up his mind not to interfere either in her choice of a husband or in her relations with that husband, once she had acquired him. Nevertheless he kept his eyes wide open, according to his custom—for while he knew the peril of unwise interference between husband and wife, he was determined to be in a position to help his daughter if the time should ever come when she should ask it.

He knew that the idea was current that Waterman's transactions were not only unfortunate but that they were not all that they should be in business integrity. Not a word of all this had passed his lips. Not a word of it would ever pass his lips except upon his daughter's request. And now a new element had entered into the situation. Waterman was gambling not only in the Street, but at Bromfield's as well.

"Hm," he reflected, "there's bound to be a crash. Poor Doris!"

When Doris went to the opera that same evening she went in no gala mood. With all the will in the world she could deceive herself no longer. She knew that her marriage was a failure. She had come by this time to have a reasonably clear understanding of her husband's character. She knew, for example, that he was not truthful. Once when she had caught him in a lie she had let him see it. The result was an outbreak of temper so painful to her that she resolved never to risk it again. She did not know, of course, the exact condition of his business affairs, but from time to time her mind went back to the talk she had had with Wilson, and her heart sank.

Many eyes were turned upon her as she entered her father's box in the golden horseshoe, during the intermission after the first act. Among them were the eyes of Frank Wilson. As Wilson leveled his glasses at the Colby box, his eyes caught the flash of diamonds. He had never seen Doris wearing this necklace before. In fact, she had worn it only twice before in her life. She did not care for jewels, and she had worn the necklace this evening only on her husband's request. It had been a family possession for many years and had come to her upon her mother's death when she was still a little girl.

"I wish," Waterman had said to her that morning, "you'd get out your diamond necklace and wear it to the opera tonight. You never wear the thing. What's the use of having it?"

To please him she had consented. She went after lunch to her strong box at the bank, got the jewels and carried them directly home. There she turned them over to the efficient Hetty, her personal maid. Hetty had been a fixture in the Colby household for a good many years. She had been Mrs. Colby's maid, and at her death had been attached to the personal service of Doris. At this time she was a woman of middle age, gray-haired, portly, laconic, efficient, reliable, devoted.

There were four guests at dinner—John Rawley and his young wife, who had been at school with Doris, and Doctor Briggs and his debutante daughter.

At table Waterman drank a bit too much, but as it made him more agreeable than he had commonly been of late, Doris reflected that it was an ill wind that blew no good.

"I see," said Doctor Briggs, who sat on Doris' right, "that you're wearing your mother's famous diamonds. I can remember the first time that ever I saw them. It was at the Academy of Music in Fourteenth street. The opera was 'Dinorah.' Patti sang that night."

"Ah, yes," said Doris, "the Academy of Music. I drove past it only yesterday. There were huge signs on the front of it announcing Charlie Ray in 'Papa's Troubles.' The world moves, doesn't it?"

"It moves," said Rawley, "but whether it moves forward or backward is another matter."

"Yes," laughed Waterman, "we're on our way, but we don't know where we're going."

The debutante giggled. Presumably she did other things at times, but she did nothing else this evening. She giggled to such good effect that Waterman, who sat upon her left, acquired the idea that he was a humorist and devoted himself to her exclusively. To the debutante it appeared to be a hilarious evening. She appeared to regard "Butterfly" as a comedy.

Now "Butterfly" was one of Doris' favorite operas, but for the

New Philco Sets Have Volume Controls

Fading, that irksome habit radio sets formerly had about the time a distant station was beginning to come in, is now practically of the past, according to Vieux Brothers, local Philco radio dealers.

"One by one such annoying problems as fading are being disposed of by radio engineers, so that before long the listener will enjoy almost perfect reception," said Mr. Vieux. "While radio's latest device, tone control, regulates quality another improvement, automatic volume control, keeps the volume of reception constant and at one stroke eliminates both fading and blasting.

"Not so long ago it was almost impossible to get satisfactory distance reception on a factory-built set. Just as the listener pulled a distant station out of the ether, the program would fade until it was inaudible. Again, when twirling the dials in search of programs, next door neighbors will testify as to the blast that occurred when a nearby station was passed with the volume control turned up.

"Automatic volume control, one of the features of the Philco Screen-grid plus receiver, remedies both of these disadvantages. Not until recently has this feature been available in moderately priced sets."

BANK RESOURCE IN PLEASANTON SHOW INCREASE

Semi-annual Statement of First National, Amador Savings Banks Given

Total resources of the Amador Valley Savings and the First National banks at the close of business, September 24, amounted to over a million dollars, according to the semi-annual statement of the two institutions appearing in this issue of The Pleasanton Times.

This sum of $1,043,229.68 indicates an increase of $48,973.97 over the total resources of the banks in April of this year, when the amount was $994,225.71.

From the report of the bank it may be seen that there is an increase of financial power in Pleasanton, which in turn evidences better business conditions in the very near future.

Pleasanton as a whole has not encountered the great depression of the large industrial cities, and business has continued to hold up remarkably well here.

MORE ON Niles Boy Scouts

the Register reporter in an interview with J. E. Townsend, chairman of the local troop committee:

"This fund of $200 is the yearly quota paid to the Oakland Area council, to keep the Niles troop connected through that body to the national organization. This sum goes into a fund in the hands of the Oakland Area council from which the salary of our representative of southern Alameda county is paid; maintains camps, of which Niles troop has privileges; pays expenses of Courts of Honor, at which awards are made, and pays other incidental expenses toward field meets, mobilization, and other events in which members of Niles Boy Scout troop take part.

"If this quota is not raised the local troop is a troop in name only. It would have no connection with the national organization or Oakland Area council, could have no field executive, and no Court of Honor. This would mean that no scout could receive higher rank than first class, and merit badges can only be legally secured at a regular recognized court of honor.

"Without recognition of Oakland Area council, and through this body, connection to the national organization, a troop could not long survive and would become only a group of boys instead of a troop of Boys Scouts, should it be able to survive at all.

"Under rules and regulations of the national organization this fund is to be raised from the community by the sponsoring body, which in this case is the Niles Chamber of Comerce. Therefore, it behooves every one believing in the boy scout movement to become contributors to this fund. Niles troop is now progressing on a sound systematic basis and it is only through this quota of $200 that it can continue to function in this manner.
